PHOTOGRAPHIC INTERPRETATION

CAREERS FOR GEOLOGISTS, GEODESISTS, GEOGRAPHERS, FORESTERS, OTHERS WITH SCIENTIFIC OR TECHNICAL ED-UCATION

ARMY, NAVY, AIR FORCE, MARINE VETERANS--CONTINUE
YOUR CAREER IN A REWARDING POSITION AS A PHOTO INTERPRETER

The photo interpreter--does more than analyze what is in a single picture. With others of varied training and skills, he relates facts he sees in a photograph with other known information and other photos to produce meaningful identifications and logical conclusions. The photo interpreter's assignments involve analysis of man-made objects and natural features from aerial and ground photography and other image sensors. The precision tools that the photo interpreter works with make analysis of this imagery an accurate and reliable source of information. The photo interpreter will work within an area of specialization often as a leader of an intelligence team contributing factual estimates of a given image representation. Imagination and professional expertise are combined to produce data that may well have a bearing on national policy decisions as exemplified in the Cuban crisis of 1962. ~~Due to the specialized nature of this employment the Central Intelligence Agency is granted direct hiring privileges without recourse to other Civil Service requirements.~~ Positions open--are for both qualified photo interpreters and trainees. Prior training and experience in related earth science studies, urban planning, photo interpretation, photogrammetry or specialized military service will be considered in determining beginning salaries. These salaries are based on the Government salary schedules now in effect.

Professional research environment--all positions are in the Washington D.C. area. Modern working facilities and equipment, including unique experimental and prototype models. Participation in sponsored training at local academic and government institutions is encouraged.

APPLY: Personnel officer _____
